

Promise

Fanta “Promise” Sullivan hails from the hip hop community of Brooklyn, New York. She migrated to Georgia eight years ago and during this transition her love and dedication for God deepened and has taken her life to another level.

Promise’s passionate love for music of every kind goes way back to her childhood, but recently her taste and tone for music has changed. Due to her undying love for God and his saving power, she is committed to a new way of life. She is dedicated to use her gifts and talents to preach the gospel and she is doing so through her sanctified and holy hip hop music.

Unlike her formative years, now her music is a ministry to transform, motivate and inspire young people who lives have been negatively influenced by the degrading and derogatory music of our culture that turns the mind off, turn the body on, and looses the wild stallions of passion.

Thank God for the Holy Spirit, she now allows God to use her for the uplifting of the kingdom and the regeneration of his priceless children and to take them back from the hands of the devil.

Promise’s philosophy is that She must use all her charisma, energy and skill to empower, educate enhance enlighten and elevate everyone who come in her pathway for the glory and power of God and the betterment of humanity, That’s why she is rightly called “Woman of God”.

Women of God